Define administrative costs and provide examples.
Administrative costs are defined as funding that supports the organization’s day to day general operations. To accomplish your proposed project, it will take more than providing a teacher in an afterschool classroom, project supplies, and other costs directly associated with project implementation. Your staff will spend time on phone calls, emails, accounting, project coordination, and other tasks that are completed as part of their regular job duties. For example, the office manager orders supplies for the project, the administrative assistant fields phone calls from parents or teachers about the project, extra supplies are pulled from your office supply cabinet, a staff member not assigned to the project substitutes for a project teacher, your executive director visits the site to see how the project is going. This is why we allow and encourage applicants to include 10% of the project request amount for administrative costs.

Each council district, A through K, will have $22,500 to award for grant term 1 and $22,500 to award for grant term 2. There is the possibility that they can fund additional projects past that amount utilizing Council District Service Funds, which may be done at their discretion.

Are copies of receipts/invoices required for the final report?
Awarded organizations must provide proof of all expenditures of program grant funds that will accompany the final report. Failure to do so will result in non-payment of the final 20% of the grant award.
